INTRODUCTION

This Handbook is the culmination of twelve years' intermittent work by the Standardization Committee of the National Shorthand Reporters' Association. This Committee was appointed by the Association at its annual convention held at Lake George, N.Y., in August, 1909, following a paper read by Mr. Thomas Bengough of Toronto, Canada, outlining plans and methods for making the National Association a clearing house for the best practice of the Pitmanic verbatim reporters of the United States and Canada, and the selection of the most approved shorthand outlines and contractions from the various modifications of Pitmanic systems, thus putting the whole on a thoroughly systematic and scientific basis.

The high ideal set before the Committee was two-fold :

1. That each shorthand character selected for a word or phrase, standing by itself, should be eminently facile, free from confusion or conflict with any other character, and when properly written, absolutely legible without dependence on context.

2. That the notes of any reporter using Standardized Shorthand should be read and transcribed correctly by any other reporter or trained assistant.

The Committee was instructed and empowered to collect from members of the National Association their reporting notes, with transcripts, lists of abbreviations used, suggestions for new outlines, and reports as to difficulties, clashings, etc., these to be arranged in three classes :

- A. Suggested abbreviations ;
- B. Tentative forms ;
- C. Adopted outlines.

Lists in Class B were to be issued to members for personal test and report ; lists in Class C were to be published as early as possible. This was done in 1916, and the present list of word signs and contractions is the result of the actual testing of that crude collection, and the reaction thereon by practical reporters in the United States and Canada.

The problem set before the Committee was to find the "common factor" in the Pitmanic systems as these had been modified or developed by thousands of verbatim reporters, no two of whom were absolutely alike in temperament, training, or actual attainment. This was the ideal phase of the problem, sometimes looked upon as Utopian. But the overmastering desire of reporters for devices that would save time and labor, and secure ease of execution and accuracy of outline, gave to the whole project such a practical appeal that during the long period through which the Committee has been working and investigating, a keen interest in standardization of shorthand on the part of the entire reporting profession has been manifested.

The Committee has utilized the columns of the National Shorthand Reporter and The Shorthand Writer, organs of the National Association, The Stenographer and Phonographic World and other shorthand journals, for correspondence, interim reports, discussions, bulletins, specimen pages of Standardized Shorthand and contributed abbreviations, "Side-Study on Standardization," and various other methods of publicity, in order to keep up the interest in a work which to many seemed to drag on without much to show in the way of actual results. The Committee members have personally experienced the tedium of their task, but notwithstanding the numerous delays occasioned by illness, stress of work, and unavoidable occurrences, they feel a great satisfaction in having partly accomplished the work outlined.

The personnel of the Committee has remained constant to a remarkable degree during these twelve years. The original five members appointed in 1909 were: Thomas Bengough, Canadian Senate Reporter, Toronto, Ontario; Robert S. Taylor, Court Reporter, Minneapolis, Minnesota; Dr. William Whitford, Medical Reporter, Chicago, Illinois; Edward H. Eldridge, Ph.D., Simmons College, Boston, Mass.; F. Berryman, Court Reporter, Toronto, Ontario.

In 1911 the Committee was enlarged by the addition of the following members: J. Fordyce Wood, Court Reporter and Handwriting Expert, Portland, Oregon (now of Chicago, Illinois); William M. Higgins, Court Reporter, Minneapolis, Minnesota; James E. Fuller, Principal Shorthand Department, Goldey College, Wilmington, Delaware; Henry S. Sanders, Court Reporter, New York City, New York;

D. A. Brown,* General Reporter, Cincinnati, Ohio; Charles H. Magee, Court Reporter, Birmingham, Alabama. In 1920 Godfrey Dewey of Lake Placid, New York, was appointed a member.

The Standardization Committee as it now stands is composed of Mr. Taylor, Mr. Bengough, Dr. Whitford, Dr. Eldridge, Mr. Fuller, Mr. Sanders, Mr. Wood, Mr. Higgins, and Mr. Dewey. The Committee has represented every phase of Pitmanic practice in reporting, and has had the unusual advantage of the teaching experience of Messrs. Eldridge and Fuller, both of whom have been active reporters.

During the past year the Committee has also had the benefit of the studies of Mr. Dewey upon the frequency of English words and sounds, and has employed to advantage in determining some questions of outline formation, the data compiled by him from the facility tests held in Detroit and New York in 1919.

While all the members of the Standardization Committee have unselfishly and without compensation devoted a great deal of their valuable time to Standardization work, we feel that special mention should be made of Robert S. Taylor, who was for many years the Chairman of the Committee. Upon him devolved the heavy task of directing and mapping out the work of the Committee, the preparation of lengthy lists of words in illustration of the various principles, and the revision of the work. This was no light task, and in the midst of Mr. Taylor's onerous court work he devoted whole days and long evenings to this work even at the expense of his health. He has worked with an enthusiasm that has inspired all the members of the Committee to renewed efforts, and the Committee feels that it is largely to him that it is indebted for the progress it has made.

It must not be inferred from this that other members of the Committee have not also worked hard and untiringly on this task. Notwithstanding the daily grind of official duties in court and school, they have all cheerfully spent innumerable hours on the work that has been allotted to them, actuated solely by the desire to see perfected a system of shorthand that should comprise the best features of all the Pitmanic systems, standardized as far as it is humanly possible; safe, legible and facile.

It may be asked, What is Standardized Shorthand? As to the principles thereof, it is a composite of the best features of various Pitmanic systems, as determined by a most searching analysis and comparison of the good features of each system, afterwards tested in the crucible of actual work by practical shorthand reporters. A great many lists of words, some sixty pages or more in length, involving each principle under consideration, were compiled, and by a system of comparative analysis it was settled in each case which principle afforded the greatest advantages in facility of execution, legibility, and avoidance of conflicts.

The Committee devoted several years to this work before it finally recommended to the Association the principles which were later adopted by the Association, and which are set forth in detail in this book. After the adoption of the principles, the Committee began work on the word signs and contractions. Lists of these were compiled, and gone over again and again in an endeavor to find the very best outline for each word. The result of this investigation is now published, and the Committee feels that this list presents a more reliable and authoritative compilation of word signs and contractions than has yet appeared in any Pitmanic textbook.

The present book is intended primarily for the use of reporters, giving them the tested results of actual experience by hundreds of their colleagues in the use of standardization principles, word signs, and contractions. As such, it should be of immediate service to every working reporter. The statement of principles will enable any writer of Pitmanic shorthand to understand the basis on which the list of word signs and contractions has been constructed. While the Committee has not intended that the statement of principles should serve as a textbook, it has endeavored to express the rules with sufficient clearness to illustrate them amply, and make them readily understood by any one familiar with Pitmanic shorthand.

It is the plan of the Committee to follow up the present publication with others, notably a shorthand dictionary and phrase book, and a textbook.

STATEMENT OF PRINCIPLES

1. Basis and Derivation. STANDARDIZED REPORTING SHORTHAND is a purely phonetic system, the fundamental principles of which have been selected from various Pitmanic systems.

2. Consonant Strokes. The following strokes represent the consonant sounds of English.

\	p	as in pop	and pin)	s	as in cease	and seal
\	b	bib	bin)	z	zebras	zeal t	tot	ten	/	ʃ	shrewish	assure
	d	did	den	/	ʒ	leisure	azure
/	ç	church	choke	/	l	lull	lap
/	j	judge	joke	/ \	r	roar	rap
—	k	clock	come	—	m	mum	map
—	g	gig	gum	—	n	nine	sin
\	f	fife	fan	—	ŋ	sinking	sing
\	v	valve	van	/	h	hay	head
(h	thinketh	thigh	\	w	way	wet
(ð	bathe	thy	(y	yam	yet
—	mp	dump or ambush		(lr	nailer
	mb

NOTE. The strokes for mp-mb and lr are irregular in that they represent combinations of two elementary consonant sounds. They are listed here for convenience. Lr is used only as a final stroke.

3. Vowels. Vowels are represented by light and heavy dots and dashes placed at the beginning, middle, and end of strokes, as follows:

•	i	as in	seat	and	tree	•	i	as in	sit	and	in
•	ē		freight		ache	•	e		fret		ebb
•	a		part		far	•	a		pat		tack
<hr/>
—	ō		naught		saw	—	o		not		odd
—	o		boat		old	—	u		but		tub
—	ū		fool		ooze	—	u		full		foot

4. Diphthongs. The diphthongs and two of the coalescents are represented thus:

Diphthongs				Coalescents
∨	i	as in	aisle	and	by	∧	ū	as in	unit	and	few
^	e		oil		boy	∨	wi		twine		wife
∧	ai		out		now

NOTE. The phonetic print letters used to key the sounds of the alphabet are a simplification of the Revised Scientific Alphabet or NEA Key Alphabet, used as Key 1 of the New Standard Dictionary and its abridgments, by Godfrey Dewey, in harmony with shorthand practice. They provide a single explicit letter for each sound and observe the true phonetic relations between the long and short vowel sounds, in harmony with international usage and the long standing practice of Pitmanic shorthand.

5. Coalescents. The coalescence of w and y with vowels may be shown by writing a small semicircle in the position of the proper vowel. The w-semicircle opens to the right for the dot vowels, to the left for the dash vowels. The y-semicircle opens to the top for the dot vowels and to the bottom for the dash vowels.

NOTE. From these characters are derived the secondary characters representing w and y described and illustrated in paragraph 17.

6. Secondary Consonantal Representation. Certain of the frequently recurring sounds are, subject to definite rules, represented by briefer forms than those given in paragraph 2. These abbreviated forms, which consist of circles, loops, hooks, ticks, double-lengths, etc., are employed according to rules set out in paragraphs 7 to 51 inclusive.

7. Small Circles. Initial s and medial or final s or z are represented by a small circle written with left motion on straight detached stems, on the inside of curves, and on the outside of angles between straight strokes, as in practically all Pitmanic systems. Initial z requires the stroke form.

NOTE. — Left motion is counter-clockwise. Right motion is clockwise. Mnemonic: The clock is right.

Illustrative words:

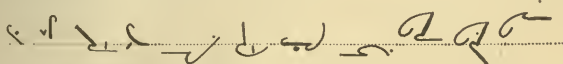

Key: space, sorrows, desk, dusty, saves, zigzags, desires, sarcasm, felicitous.

Pl, Bl, Tl, Dl, Chl, Jl, Kl, Gl, Fl, Vl, Thl, Dhl, Shl (upward).
Rl, Ml, Nl, Ll.

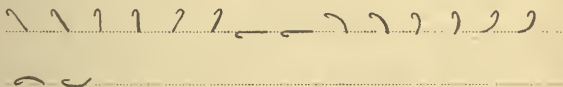

NOTE. These hooks are all small except the last four. Observe that all except ml and ll are written with left motion.

Illustrative words :

Key: play, idle, buckle, oval, carol, tunnel, glacial, camel, illogical, illegible, illegal.

12. The R-Hook. A similar series of double-consonant stems is used to represent the combination of the consonant strokes with the sound of r, as follows :

Pr, Br, Tr, Dr, Chr, Jr, Kr, Gr, Fr, Vr, Thr, Dhr, Shr, Zhr, Mr, Nr.

NOTE. Observe that all of these hooks except nr are written with right motion, and that mr and nr are shaded.

Illustrative words:

Key: pray, robber, throb, leisure, crop, rumor, honor, bother, joker, Kramer, digger, picker.

13. Special Vocalization. To avoid awkward or inconvenient outlines resulting from the use of the strokes l or r, special vocalization may be used to indicate the presence of a vowel between sounds represented by double consonants, as in the following words :

Key : normal, roll, Calvin, circulation, qualify, cardinal.

14. Triple Consonants. The circle-s is attached initially to double consonants in the way common to most Pitmanic systems, thus :

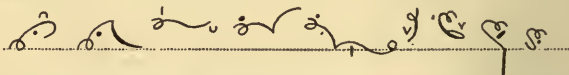

Key : splice, civil, psychological, spray, cedar, sacrifice.

15. Quadruple Consonants. The ses-circle or the st-loop may precede a straight double consonant of the r series in a similar way. Illustrations :

Key : sister, stoker, stagger.

16. Initial In, En, Un. These syllables, when followed by a circle written with right motion, or by a triple consonant of the l series, may be expressed by a backward initial hook, as shown below. (See paragraphs 11 and 14.)

Key : insulation, enslave, insomnia, unseemly, unceremonious, incise, uncivilized, unexplored, unexplained.

NOTE. The principle must be used with care in negative words.

17. Brief W. A semicircle opening either to the left or to the right (whichever gives the better joining) may be attached initially (and sometimes medially) to represent w. Illustrative words:

Key: web, wait, weak, wing, waif, wedge, outwit, Glenwood.

NOTE. For the derivation of these forms see paragraph 5.

18. Brief Y. Similarly, a semicircle opening either up or down represents y. Illustrations:

Key: yacht, yoke, yawn, yell, unyoke.

19. S Before Brief W. The small circle-s combines initially with brief w as in the following words:

Key: sweat, switch, swag, swap, Sweden.

20. The Small W-Hook. Brief w before lay, ray, m and n takes the form of a small hook, as shown below.

NOTE. Lay is the distinctive name given to the stroke l when written upward; the same stroke written downward is called el. Similarly the name ray signifies the upward form of r.

Key: wail, wore, woman, wine.

21. The Circle-S Before the W-Hook. The circle-s may precede this small w-hook, as shown in the following words:

Key: swore, swale, swim, swoon.

22. The Tick-H. For greater ease in joining, h may be represented either initially or medially by a short tick in the direction of ch, whenever it forms an acute angle, thus ;

Key: hook, unhook, hale, inhale, human, inhuman, hearse, rehearse.

23. The LR-Hook. The l-hook may be enlarged to add the sound of r, as in the following words :

Key : coupler, traveler, muffler, buckler, floor, blare, declare, clear, clergy.

NOTE. This principle does not, of course, apply to the large l-hook attached to m, n, lay, and ray. See paragraph 11.

24. The RL-Hook. Similarly an enlarged r-hook expresses an added l, as in the following words :

Key: April, liberal, mackerel, girl, trail, mineral.

25. The N-Hook. A small final hook written with right motion on straight strokes and on the inside of curves represents n; thus :

Key: fan, pain, thine, down, line, gone, hen, campaign.

26. Final Ns and Nz Distinguished. Following curved strokes, final ns is usually written with the hook and circle, and nz with the stroke n and circle.

This not only increases legibility but preserves uniformity of outline in derivatives. Illustrations :

Key : shines, lanes, mains, zones, ransom, lonesome ; evince, evinces, evinced.

27. Final Ns, Nses, Nst, Nstr, on Straight Strokes. A final circle or loop following the n-hook on a final straight stroke is written with right motion, as shown in the following illustrations :

Key : puns, punster ; dance, dances, danced ; rinse, rinses, rinsed ; drowns, prince, glance, glances, cranes, spinster.

28. The F-V-Hook. A small final hook attached only to straight strokes and written with left motion, represents f or v, thus :

Key : puff, bravery, toughen, chief, crave, hoof, hive.

29. Circle-S Inside Small Hooks. The circle-s is written small inside the f-v hook, thus :

Key : puffs, braves, toughs, chiefs, craves, roofs, hives.

30. Special F-V-Hook on Curves. Restricted use of an elongated final hook on certain curves to indicate f or v is provided for, thus :

Key : thief, nerve, live, (leave), navigation.

31. The Shun-Hook. A large final hook written on the inside of curves, and with left motion on straight strokes, represents the syllable variously spelled tion, cian, sian, sion, etc. Illustrations:

Key: reception, stationer, fusion, electrician, function, artesian, session, cautionary, delusion, abortion.

32. The Backward Shun-Hook. Following a final circle, the shun-hook is turned backward through the preceding stroke, taking the shape of a small curl. Illustrative words:

Key: physician, accession, transition, pulsation, sensational.

33. Irregular Representation of Shun. To secure brief and more convenient outlines for certain derivative words, two irregular forms of shun are provided: (a) Following half-length strokes, it is represented by the circle-s and the backward curl. (b) Following the f-v-hook, a small breve may be used for shun. Illustrative words:

Key: (a) adaptation, reputation, vegetation, repetition, accentuation, arithmetician; (b) division, divisional.

34. S-Circle Following Shun. The final circle-s may be written within any of the foregoing forms representing shun, as in: .

Key : motions, depositions, dispensations, repetitions, divisions.

35. Differentiated Shun. When the syllable shun is immediately preceded by consecutive vowels, it is often wise to use the stroke ish and the n-hook instead of the shun-hook, especially in cases of conflicting outlines, as :

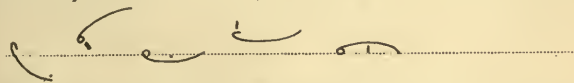

Key : Contention, continuation, attention, attenuation, extension, extenuation.

36. The Tive-Hook. A large final hook written with right motion on straight strokes represents the syllable tive, as in the following words :

Key : active, sedative, abortiveness, fugitives, adjectives.

37. Lengthening Curves. Any curved stroke may be written twice its normal length to express the added syllables ter, der, ther, ture. Illustrations :

Key : flatter, slaughter, center, wander, smother.

NOTE. A few exceptions to this practice must be noted because of possible conflicts. Illustrations :

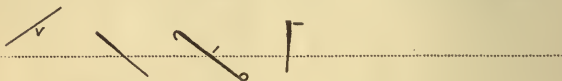

Key : letter-leather, motor-mother.

38. Lengthening Final Straight Strokes. A final straight stroke that joins the preceding stroke at an angle may be lengthened similarly, thus :

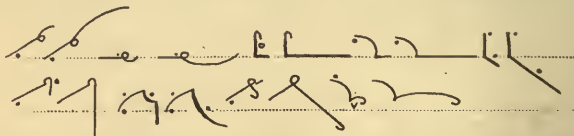

Key: projector, debater, picture, tractor, strictures.

39. Lengthening Single Straight Strokes. A few single straight strokes may be so lengthened, but this should be done with caution. Illustrations :

Key: writer, better, brothers, daughter.

40. Lengthening to Express Past Tense. Lengthening may, with very few exceptions, be safely employed to express the past tense of a verb if the present tense requires more than one stroke and ends with a half-length stroke, hooked or unhooked. One conspicuous exception is the word elevated, which conflicts badly with elevator. Illustrations :

Key: result, resulted; accent, accented; delegate, delegated; erect, erected; debate, debated; retreat, retreated; elevated, elevator; respond, responded; remind, reminded.

41. Final Hooks on Lengthened Strokes. A final hook attached to a lengthened stroke is read before the syllable expressed by lengthening. (This principle is used mostly with the n-hook.) Illustrations:

Key: painters, binder, slender, tenderness, flounder, surrenders.

42. Exceptional Treatment of Final Hook. In order to retain certain desirable outlines, it is allowable to make an exception in the case of such words as the following, in which the final hook is read after the syllable expressed by lengthening. Illustrations:

Key: modern, northern, eastern, alteration (a special form), alderman, and in such phrases as "another-one."

43. Lengthened Ing. The stroke ing is lengthened to express added ker or ger as follows:

Key: sinker, linger, hunker, hunger, anchor, anger.

44. Lengthened MP-MB. The stroke mp-mb may be lengthened to express added er as shown below.

Key: chamber, timbers, lumber, jumper, plumper.

45. Halving. Any stroke except w, y, lr, ing, mp-mb, lay, ray, and h may (subject to certain restrictions to provide for vowel placement or indication) be written half its usual length to express a following t or d. Lay, ray, and h may be halved to add t, but not to add d, when they stand alone. Illustrations:

Key: pate-paid, bite-bide, coat-code, got-God, great-grade, pedagogue, carrot, hate, write, invite, light, coördinate, reed, laid, heed.

46. Shading to Express D. The strokes l, r, m, n may be shaded and halved to express d. Illustrations:

Key: old, hired, sounds, consumed, toiled, seemed, sealed.

47. Initial Appendages to Halved Strokes. Initial circles, hooks, and loops may be attached to halved strokes the same as to full-length strokes. Illustrative words:

Key: stopped, spread, bottled, colt-cold, prodigious, invert, generate, slate, stared, stamped, swelled, sward.

48. Final Circles and Loops Read Last. A final circle or loop attached to a halved stroke is read after the indicated t or d, thus:

Key: avoids, tightest, rights, fattest, greatest, moods, hoards.

49. Order of Reading Final Appendages. A final hook attached to a halved stroke is read before the indicated t or d, but a circle following such a hook is read last. Illustrations:

Key: paint, paints; tuft, tufts; brand, brands; cautioned, motioned, drift, drifts.

50. Past Tense Added by Stroke D. When the present tense of a monosyllable is represented by a halved stroke, or when for any other reason the use of the lengthening principle explained in paragraph 40 is not desirable, the past tense is regularly formed by adding the stroke d, joined or disjoined, according to convenience, thus:

Key: scent, scented; treat, treated; cheat, cheated; mount, mounted; float, floated; dread, dreaded; crate, crated; fret, fretted; sound, sounded.

51. Exceptional Forms for Past Tense. Some lengthened final-hooked strokes do not conveniently join with the stroke d to form the past tense. In such cases it is best to employ the halving principle, thus:

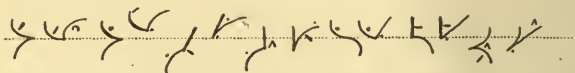

Key: render, rendered; thunder, thundered; encounter, encountered; flounder, flounder; slander, slandered.

GENERAL PRINCIPLES

52. Final Vowel Indication. The use of the down-strokes for l and r at the end of outlines to indicate a final consonant sound, and the corresponding use of the upstrokes lay and ray to indicate a final vowel is approved, in so far as such use is practicable. Illustrations:

Key: foal, folio; veil, volley; jewel, jelly; towel, tallow; fair, fairy; door, dory; shower, showery.

53. Initial Vowel Indication. As far as practicable, the use of the downstrokes for l and r at the beginning of outlines to indicate an initial vowel, and the corresponding use of the upstrokes lay and ray to indicate an initial consonant sound is recommended, thus:

Key: like, alike; location, allocation; locative, elective; Lena, Illinois; rack, ark; oar, row; Ryan, Orion.

54. Stroke and Dot Forms of Ing. Verbals derived from nouns that end with vowels may be distinguished from other words that end with the sound of ng by using the dot ing to indicate the preceding vowel. Illustrations:

Key: haying, hung; rowing, rung; snowing, sunning; delaying, dulling; decaying, ducking; mellowing, mailing.

NOTE. In this connection it should be borne in mind that the facility tests conducted by Godfrey Dewey, of the Stand-ardization Committee, have shown that disjoining causes loss of time more than equivalent to that required to write an added stroke.

PREFIXES

55. Con-Com-Cog. These syllables are represented by a dot preceding the outline, as shown in the following words :

Key : Condescend, controller, compelled, commander, cognomen, cognizance.

NOTE. The prefix should be written first—not after the stem word has been written.

56. Medial Con. When con-com-cog occur medially, the dot is omitted and the syllable it represents is indicated by disjoining, as shown :

Key : decomposition, recognize, inconvenience.

57. Inter-Enter-Intro. These prefixes are represented by a double-length n, thus :

Key : intercourse, entertain, introduced, intercepted, enterprising.

58. Magna-Magni. These prefixes are written with a disjoined stroke m, as follows :

Key : magnanimity, magnify, magnanimous, magnificent.

59. Unre-Unri. These initial syllables are written with the double consonant nr, as illustrated:

Key : unrestricted, unrivaled, unrighteous, unprovable.

60. Ante-Anti. These prefixes are represented by a half-length n, joined or disjoined, according to convenience, thus :

Key : antemundane, antediluvian, antipathy, antiseptic.

61. Self. A small circle, joined or disjoined, represents this prefix, as illustrated :

Key : selfish, self-respect, self-evident, self-denial.

62. Self-con. When self is followed by con the circle is written disconnected in the place of the dot-con, thus :

Key : self-confident, self-control, self-conceit, self-condemned.

63. Counter-Contra-Contro. These are expressed by a disjoined tick preceding the outline, as shown :

Key : counteraction, contradistinction, controversy, counter-claim.

64. For-Fore. These prefixes are represented by the stroke f. Illustrations:

Key: foreclose, forefront, foremost, foretold, forbid, forebode, forfeit, forswear, forward.

SUFFIXES

65. Ing. Whenever, for any reason, the use of the stroke ng is undesirable, the syllable may be represented by a dot at the end of the outline, as illustrated:

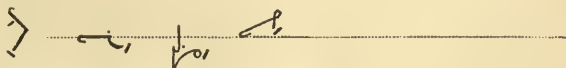

Key: doing, saying, laying, decaying, pitying, displaying.

66. Ings, Ing-his, Ing-us. These suffixes are represented by the disjoined circle, thus:

Key: doings, sayings, meetings, takings, buildings, paintings, giving his (us), asking his (us), protecting his (us).

67. Ingly. This double suffix may be represented by a shaded tick, disjoined and generally slanted, thus:

Key: obligingly, aggravatingly, tantalizingly, hesitatingly.

68. Ing-the. The word the following a word ending with ing may be phrased with the preceding word by means of a slanting disjoined tick, as shown:

Key : doing the, meeting the, taking the, printing the, acting the.

69. Ing-a. When a word ends with ing followed by a, the ing-a may be expressed by a vertical or horizontal tick ; but this tick must be written with perfect accuracy to avoid conflicts with ing-the. Illustrations :

Key : doing a, taking a, meeting a, treating a, giving a.

70. Ble-Bly. These syllables are represented systematically by the stroke b whenever the hooked or double-consonant form bl will not join conveniently. Illustrations :

Key : dependable, surmountable, patentable, actionable, adjustable, defensible, transmissible, inclinable.

71. Ility-Ality-Arity-Erity. These suffixes are regularly represented by disjoining the stroke representing the consonant immediately preceding the suffix, as illustrated :

Key : dependability, plurality, popularity, prosperity, ductility, cordiality, disparity, dexterity.

72. Self-Selves. These suffixes are represented by a small and a large circle, respectively, usually joined, but sometimes disjoined for greater legibility or suggestiveness, thus :

Key : myself, yourself, yourselves, themselves, oneself.

73. Ology. This suffix is represented by 'a disjoined j, thus :

Key : theology-theological, dermatology-dermatological, zoölogy-zoölogical.

74. Ment. This suffix is often abbreviated by the omission of either the m or the n, as shown :

Key : refinement, assignment, discernment, commandment, regimental, experimental, fundamental, enrollment, announcement.

75. Double Suffixes. Many words terminate in what may be called a double suffix, the final syllable being ness. Systematic representation of such terminations is provided for as follows : To represent the first suffix, disjoin its most suggestive consonant stroke and attach to it the final circle-s to represent ness.

NOTE. When the preceding suffix is less, the final circle must, of course, be enlarged.

Illustrations :

Key: agreeableness, serviceableness, wickedness, gracefulness, passiveness, fearlessness, affectionateness, bashfulness, manliness, wholesomeness, deliberateness, childishness, carelessness, mischievousness.

76. Omission of K. Words terminating with the syllables action, ection, iction, uiction are generally contracted by the omission of the k, thus:

Key: putrefaction, disinfection, classification, affliction, construction, mystification, confection, refraction, introduction.

77. Ful-Fully. The l-hook may be omitted for a more convenient joining. On straight strokes the f-hook may be used, thus:

Key: disgraceful-ly, baneful-ly, spoonful, glassful, wonderfully, bountiful-ly, careful-ly, cheerful-ly, helpful-ly, heedful-ly, joyful-ly.

78. Ship. The stroke ish, joined or disjoined, expresses the suffix ship, thus:

Key: hardship, judgeship, statesmanship, generalship, horsemanship, township, steamship, partnership.

79. Ficient-ly-cy. These terminations are abbreviated as shown in the following illustrations:

Key: efficient-ly-cy, deficient-ly-cy, sufficient-ly-cy.

80. Tial-ly. These syllables are generally omitted following the n-hook, thus:

Key: circumstantial-ly, credential, differential, potential-ly, presidential, residential.

SYSTEMATIC CONTRACTIONS

Certain classes of words not heretofore listed are regularly abbreviated according to definite rules of ellipsis, as follows :

81. N. Omit n regularly in the prefix trans, and elsewhere in outlines where it does not join conveniently, thus :

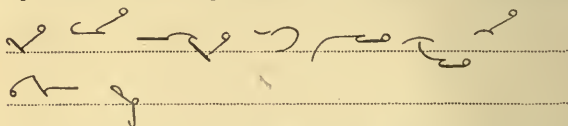

Key : transfer, transplant, transpire, transmissible; transfusion, transmogrification, abandonment, attainment, counsel, chancery, contentment, enchantment, frantic, harbinger, husbandman.

82. T. When t follows s it may be omitted for convenience in such words as the following:

Key: accustom, breastbone, broomstick, domestic, earnestness, expostulation, justify, lastly, mostly.

83. Ing. This syllable may be omitted in many compound words or phrases, such as are shown below:

Key: boarding house, clearing house, gambling house, knitting machine, looking-glass, magnifying glass, meeting-house, sleeping-car, stepping-stone.

84. Room. The r may be omitted from this word and the m written detached below the preceding stroke, as shown:

Key: back room, baggage room, bedroom, dining-room, engine-room.

COMMONEST ENGLISH WORDS

The two lists of commonest words following are taken from the shorthand investigations of Godfrey Dewey.

Previously published lists have been proved to be not fully representative due to insufficient diversity of the material counted. The lists following are based on an investigation which counted and analyzed every word, syllable, and sound of 100,000 words of connected matter, chosen in twenty well diversified groups representative of good English as used—written, spoken, and printed—today. The largest count previously published, that of Cooke & O'Shea, found only 2500 different words in 200,000; whereas this count found 10,200 different words in 100,000. In view of this strikingly superior diversity the following conclusions seem warranted.

The ten commonest words—the, of, and, to, a, in, that, it, is, I—will be found to form over 25% of all written, spoken, or printed matter.

The 100 commonest words, here listed in order of frequency, will form over 50% of all matter.

The 1000 commonest words, here listed in alphabetic order, will be found to form over 75% of any connected matter sufficiently long to be fairly representative, and comprise all words which occur more than once in 10,000 words. Beyond this point no statement as to the commonest words of English can have general significance; for the nature of the words found is no longer common to all grammatic discourse, but varies more and more widely with the subject matter of the material analyzed.

Outlines for these commonest words will accordingly repay particularly careful study.

INTRODUCTION TO WORD SIGN AND CONTRACTION LIST

On the following pages will be found an alphabetical list of all the word signs and contractions recommended by the Committee. This list is not intended in any way as a general vocabulary or phrase list, although many words have been included which are not strictly word signs or contractions. Such words have been inserted either because many writers use contractions for them and the long form is inserted to show the Committee's preference, or they have been added for illustrative purposes. The few phrases which have been included are given to show their relation to one of the word signs or contractions.

Word signs (outlines composed of single strokes and appendages) are printed in bold-face type. Words which are derived directly from word signs are indented. Words which are inserted because of danger of conflict or for comparison and which are not necessarily in their alphabetical order are indented and placed in parentheses.

In Pitmanic shorthand, several methods are employed for indicating the past tense. In the list of words following, four such methods are indicated and when one of these four methods may be employed, the fact is indicated by a superior letter or character as shown in the key on the following page.

KEY TO WORD SIGN AND CONTRACTION LIST

adjudge ^d	the past tense should be expressed by a joined d or t .
abolish-ed ^d	the outline given is usually safe for all forms indicated, but when necessary, the past tense may be expressed by a joined d or t .
accept ^d	the past tense should be expressed by a disjoined d or t .
acquiesce-d ^d	the outline given is usually safe for all forms indicated, but when necessary, the past tense may be expressed by a disjoined d or t .
engage ⁱ -ment	the past tense should be expressed by halving the final stroke.
accompany-ied ¹ -ment	the outline given is usually safe for all forms indicated, but when necessary, the past tense may be expressed by halving the final stroke.
abstract ²	the past tense should be expressed by making the final stroke double length .
acquaint-ed ² -ance	the outline given is usually safe for all forms indicated, but when necessary, the past tense may be expressed by making the final stroke double length .
accomplish-ed ¹ -ment	the hyphens indicate that the outline given is used for all three forms.
acceptable-ness	the hyphen indicates that the outline is for acceptableness and not for acceptable.
(voc.)	indicates that the outline should be vocalized.
(v)	indicates that the word is a verb.
(n)	indicates that the word is a noun.
